

Matteo Gnes (degree in Law, University of Rome “La Sapienza”, 1995; PhD, EUI, 2000) is Full Professor of Administrative law at the University of Urbino Carlo Bo, Italy, where he is Deputy-Director and responsible of the research activities of the Law Department. He is Director of the Institute for Global Health Emergencies Response (IGHER) of the European Public law Organisation (EPLO) and Co-Director of the Master in Administrative sciences and innovation in the public administration (MasterPA) organized jointly by the Universities of Urbino and of Macerata. He has been Fulbright Visiting Professor (Distinguished Lecturer Chair) at Georgetown University of Washington D.C. (USA) and has been teaching and lecturing in many Italian and foreign universities, in the fields of administrative law, Italian public law, public accountancy law, European administrative law, international law, comparative administrative law. He wrote 4 books and more than 170 articles and essays in the field of public, administrative and European law. His current research interests are emergency powers, management of health emergencies and reform of the public administration. Detailed information on his research activities may be found at <https://www.uniurb.it/persona/matteo-gnes>.